

Humanity 10.0

Shaping our future together!

Do we humans have common dreams, wishes, visions and goals?

Details will differ from person to person, however, on the whole, we all want the same things: well-being, stable material and social living conditions, and a secure future in the long-term.

»Humanity 10.0« enables the development of a concrete concept to secure a future life worth living, based on the links between these areas of focus. The principle is simple: Everything around us and the developments that are likely to occur, must benefit everyone.

Five simple questions create clarity:

Is an issue or trend and its developments positive or negative for:

- The individual Human (you/me)?
- My/our close Surroundings?
- My/our Community?
- The entire Environment?
- Humanity as a whole?

Via this analysis, the relevance of issues - trends, inventions, political decisions, etc. - and their consequences, as well as possible developments, are critically examined and discussed, enabling us to use our limited resources more effectively. As a result, a new way of thinking and a universal values/rating system emerges.

Quantification and comparisons of ratings lead to transparent measures of social benefit - the »Humanity Points«. By converting ratings into »Humanity Points«, they can be used in a variety of ways. The benchmarks are comparable for all individuals and organisations and thus promote equal opportunities and solidarity.

The introduction of »Humanity 10.0« occurs in parallel to everything that already exists. Everyone can participate, existing experiences, structures and tools can be used. »Humanity 10.0« can be applied flexibly, e.g., for individual issues, in organisations or for global challenges.

Details of the modus operandi and implementation can be found in the book »Humanity 10.0«, as well as on the website www.humanity10.org. The book, »Humanity 10.0« also contains details as to how everyone can participate. Any form of support or any suggestions, with regard to wishes, goals, ideas, or concepts for shaping our future, are very welcome (please contact us at www.humanity10.org).

Let´s get started!